MIAMI

INSIDE OUT

With a grand opening slated for early December, the Pérez Art Museum Miami (PAMM) is already staging a place in the design community with a style that's at once modern and organic. This new Herzog & de Meuron-designed facility will feature more than 200,000 square feet of programmable indoor and outdoor space, including galleries, an auditorium, an education complex and a waterfront restaurant.

Museum designers took South Florida's unique environment into account by bringing the park into the museum with verandas, hanging gardens and an expansive, perforated canopy. "I love the way the museum works in concert with its natural surroundings," says

Marcella Novela, who serves as contemporaries chair, young collectors council chair and board of trustees member for PAMM.

"There is also a great social aspect to the design. There will be shaded plazas and other areas where you can meet up with friends and enjoy the views of Biscayne Bay and the park." pamm.org —Kristy Alpert

Best in Show

Integral to the love of natural light is an understanding of how to frame it and tame it. To that end, The Shade Store is an essential resource. Now the brand is proud to announce a new location on the Gulf Coast, at the Miromar Design Center. "Miromar is a great fit because of all the additional showrooms that have recently opened and their open-door policy to the public," says partner Ian Gibbs. Customers can visit the brand-new 900-square-foot showroom to see the company's lines of motorized products, including Solar Shades, Roller Shades, Roman Shades and other assorted drapery. Miromar Design Center, 10800 Corkscrew Road, Estero, theshadestore.com —Jake Boyer
